 Designing Food Shops requires different skills compared to other retail spaces. Firstly of all you need to consider the complexity of a public space that is subject to stringent hygiene and health and safety requirements. Also there is the functionality to consider. the space needs to work in that it is planned to avoid overloading, maintaining the flow of both workers, consumers and the food itself. Colours, Furniture, Materials and Lighting all need to be carefully selected to show off the food. With separate chapters on Exterior Design, Space Design, Food Service Counters, Display and Fixtures and Fittings the book uses full colour examples from different stores including Snog, Polka Gelato, Raoul's, Bea's of Bloomsbury and William Curley's in London alongside many other's from around the world.

Designing the Brand Identity in Retail Spaces Design Media Publishing Limited

Over the past few years there has been a proliferation of new kinds of retail space. Retail space has cropped up just about everywhere in the urban landscape: in libraries, workplaces, churches and museums. In short, retail is becoming a more and more manifest part of the public domain. The traditional spaces of retail, such as city centres and outlying shopping malls, are either increasing in size or disappearing, producing new urban types and whole environments totally dedicated to retail. The creation of these new retail spaces has brought about a re- and de-territorialisation of urban public space, and has also led to transformations in urban design and type of materials used, and even in the logic and ways through which these design amenities meet the needs of retailers and/or consumers. This book describes how the retailisation of public domains affects our everyday life and our use of the built environment. Taking an architectural and territorial perspective on this issue, it looks specifically at how retail and consumption spaces have changed and territorialised urban life in different ways. It then develops a methodology and a set of concepts to describe and understand the role of architecture in these territorial transformations.
