Conference on the Limitation of Armament Firenze University Press
Updated for 2013 with new words and phrases! Sometimes you need a phrasebook that does a lot more than just tell you where the bathroom is. If you're a woman in a country where you don't speak the language, you might need more assistance. What if you want to flirt with that really cute waiter in Paris? What if a strange man hits on you in Venice? Maybe you just want to sleep in a hostel in Madrid without worrying that your bag will get stolen. Alison Owings, solo traveler extraordinaire, presents a handy guidebook to key words and phrases in French, Italian and Spanish. In addition to important, everyday phrases to help with finding hotels, currency exchange, dining out and transportation, you'll also find terms from dating to shopping and political discussions to working out. There's something here for every woman on the go. San Francisco Examiner said: "This cheeky, savvy, sexy primer, designed for women but entertaining for all, is not your conventional 'Can I have the check please?' phrasebook. If it were a movie, it would probably get an R rating." And from The New York Times: "For women, here are ways to say scram or stay. A phrasebook for women traveling solo or with other women - whether you're looking for a companion or look to get rid of one." Hilarious and helpful, The Wander Woman's Phrasebook belongs in every woman traveler's carry-on. Dalloz, jurisprudence générale Lloyd's Register

Tumata Robinson a grandi avec ses trois soeurs dans le domaine paisible et protégé d'Ofaipapa, à Tahiti, entourée de servantes et de préceptrices, mais sans sa mère Philomène, décédée très jeune d'une tumeur au cerveau... C'est en tout cas ce que lui a toujours raconté William Albert Robinson, dit Robbie, son père adoré, l'un des premiers navigateurs à avoir fait le tour du monde à la voile à la fin des années 1920. Après la mort de Robbie, en 1988, Tumata décide de percer le mystère qui entoure les circonstances de la disparition de sa mère, car elle sent que son père lui a caché la vérité. En remontant le passé, elle découvre que cet homme charismatique et brillant, qui a reçu les honneurs de la Maison Blanche, ami de Marlon Brando, et surtout infiniment respecté à Tahiti pour avoir financé un institut de recherches sur la filariose, ce père tant admiré était aussi un collectionneur de jolies femmes: ainsi Florence, une richissime héritière de Boston, qu'il a épousée et avec laquelle il a eu un fils, ou la volcanique Sally, une artiste peintre américaine, sans oublier les superbes vahinés qui défilaient à Ofaipapa. Au fil de ses recherches, en interrogeant les personnes qui ont connu ses parents, Tumata découvre que sa mère était une servante courageuse et dévouée au service du navigateur, qui lui donnera trois filles avant de disparaître tragiquement à l'âge de vingt-six ans dans ce qui a été le dernier baignade de Tahiti, transformé en hôpital psychiatrique... Une quête émouvante, mais aussi une plongée poétique dans le Tahiti riche et coloré de W. Somerset Maugham, loin des clichés exotiques. Information Concerning the St. Lawrence Waterway and Connecting Channels from Anticosti Island to Lakehead

This wide-ranging theme takes Braudel's concept of the "Mediterranean" as its starting point. Braudel's vision of an enclosed sea as a geographical opportunity for economic integration between nations with different religions, languages and ethnicities and political bodies still functions as a model for studies on a wide range of contexts. The goal of the 50th Study Week was to go beyond the study of individual systems in isolation, and to combine instead different analysis of open and enclosed seas or coastal areas in order to understand the integration role played by maritime connections in Europe. Since in pre-industrial civilizations water transport was easier than land transport, the time has come to bring attention to the way these relationship networks operated both on a European level and with Asian and North African trade partners. This volume starts from the great research traditions which have, however, rarely been integrated on a larger and continental scale, and analyses them on either a regional or thematic basis. Immanuel Wallerstein has developed Braudel's concept by conceptualising its intercultural and transnational dimensions and its role in the system of labour. He called it a "world system", not because it involves the whole world, but because it is larger than any legally defined political unit. And it is a "world economy" because the base link between the different parts of the system has an economic nature. The various regional research aspects and traditions have been linked together in a coherent approach which aims at evaluating: - What geographical, nautical, technical, economic, legal, social and cultural elements influenced the emergence of the various regional networks, and how these worked; - The nature and role of seaports as nodal points of sea routes and of their hinterland through rivers, canals and roads; - The commercial and personal ties between merchants and shipowners in various ports; - How regional networks connected with each other and how, over time, they ended up integrating into larger units; - How private networks, initially between merchant and seafarer organizations, ended up dealing with local authorities and, after their growth, with states and empires in order to protect their interests.

In The Fatimids and the Sea (909-1171), David Bramoullé shows how in medieval times an Ismaili dynasty of Caliphs used the sea to develop and justify its claims of control over the Muslim world. Dans les Fatimides et la mer (909-1171), David Bramoullé montre comment à l'époque médiévale une dynastie musulmane de rite ismaélien utilisa la mer pour se développer et justifier ses prétentions à contrôler le monde musulman.

St. Lawrence Ship Channel from the Father Point to Montreal Including Tide Tables, Montreal to Lake Ontario and the Ottawa River BRILL Accoster ou sortir d'un port est impossible ou presque surtout quand on jauge 300.000 tonnes, et chaque havre a ses caractéristiques, ses pièges, ses malices. Heureusement les remorqueurs sont là : des Abeilles spécialisées, moins médiatiques que leurs grandes sœurs hauturières, mais qui, elles aussi, prennent tous les risques du secours en mer. L'auteur qui a su gagner la confiance des équipages est monté à bord pour quatre chaleureux reportages, informatifs et photographiques, au Havre, à Dunkerque, Nantes Saint-Nazaire et Marseille Fos. Il raconte les gens de mer, leurs journées, leurs bateaux - des bijoux technologiques -, leur métiers et leurs savoir faire avec leurs anecdotes et leurs mots à la fois vigoureux, précis et poétiques qu'il appuie de superbes photographies.
