This poignant recollection begins when an ordinary thirteen-year-old girl enters the extraordinary era of Beatlemania. The thread of selective Beatles fun times is woven throughout fifty-plus years, taking you up to present day. The memoir evolved from letters exchanged with the sweetest of pen pals, Mrs. Louise Harrison. This unique experience with George's mum added to the excitement of getting to know and love the Beatles. As the Beatles continue to be relevant today, memories of our youth and growing up during the Fab Four times are reignited as you travel through the decades with "Just a Girl..." This memoir is a labor of love that captures a delightful yesterday worth reading about. It will no doubt take you on your own trip down that '60's memory lane.

Just a Girl Who Loves Foxes: Fox Journal Notebook

The inspiring true story of an indomitable librarian's journey from Nazi Germany to Seattle to Vietnam--all for the love of books. Growing up under Fascist censorship in Nazi Germany, Ruth Rappaport absorbed a forbidden community of ideas in banned books. After fleeing her home in Leipzig at fifteen and losing both parents to the Holocaust, Ruth drifted between vocations, relationships, and countries, searching for belonging and purpose.

When she found her calling in librarianship, Ruth became not only a witness to history but an agent for change as well. Culled from decades of diaries, letters, and photographs, this epic true story reveals a driven woman who survived persecution, political unrest, and personal trauma through a love of books. It traces her activism from the Zionist movement to the Red Scare to bibliotherapy in Vietnam and finally to the Library of Congress, where Ruth made an indelible mark and found a home. Connecting it all, one constant thread: Ruth's passion for the printed word, and the haven it provides--a haven that, as this singularly compelling biography proves, Ruth would spend her life making accessible to others. This wasn't just a career for Ruth Rappaport. It was her purpose.
