Theology's longest tradition is as a course of study that leads to wisdom. With the growth of the academy, however, theology fell into a fixation with the objective results of science. In this illuminating study Daniel Treier retrieves the older, deeper understanding of theology and connects wisdom in theological education to the theological interpretation of scripture, giving rise to a renewed understanding of the role of virtue in each. Dialoguing with a number of prominent proponents of theological interpretation of scripture, Treier builds on a biblical theology of wisdom that involves the daily lives of all God's people. Ultimately, Treier connects educational discussions of theology and hermeneutical discussions through a trinitarian understanding of wisdom. As a result, the increasingly diverse forms and social locations of theology can be integrated into the mainstream of theological reflection. Filled with interdisciplinary wisdom, Virtue and the Voice of God is a timely recovery of the essential conversation between theological education, virtue, and scriptural interpretation.

Eden's Voice Emmanuel BUAMA HEALING

In unison, their voices echo back in the room. "We are Eden. The garden flourishes where genesis ends." In this house, we do one thing. We bring pleasure. We serve the debauchery of others. We are the masters. When outside forces threaten to topple our empire, we do the only thing we understand. We fight back...with our bodies. Tyrants, traitors, and everything in between. Nothing stands between the House of Eden and our goals. The mortality of mothers, the fate of daughters. Will this game of power ever end?

Eden Randall has her life under control. Sure, people call her weird for having a mechanical dragon with her at all times, but she's content. All she needs are her studies and her sports--and for the football team to have another undefeated season. What she doesn't need are nosy men from out-of-town poking into her business.

Six thousand years ago, God pronounced a curse upon this earth because of Adam's disobedience in Eden. The message of this book is a clarion call to twenty-first-century man to obey God's four commands given in Eden whereby evil will be held in check. God got this author's attention to write this book by one word spoken in his ear. It was back in 2011, he heard one word "write." The author did not know what subject God wanted him to write about, but then the impression came to his mind to write about creation and the fall of man. God gave man four commands! Number 4 is not really a command. It is really following God's example of resting and worshiping. If man worshiped God and held His name in sanctity, that would virtually wipe out crime and divorce. True worshipers will honor those two words of commitment that they made at the wedding altar "I do." See Genesis 1:31. Crime and divorce, gone. Number 3 command is reproducing and subduing the earth (Gen. 1:28). The number 2 command is not to eat what God forbid (Gen. 2:16"17 and 1:29"30). Daniel adhered to this (Dan. 1:8). Command number 1 (work) is in Genesis 2:15"16. Dress the garden and keep it. God gave Adam a world that was "very good" while the twenty-first-century man has a world that is very bad. God is saying to twenty-first-century man, "If you keep what you are doing, you will keep getting what you are getting. Obey my commands and eat the good of the land." The message of the book? Honor God's creation. Love Him with all your heart, soul, and body and your neighbor as yourself. When the twenty-first-century man lives this way, evil will be held in check, and world conditions will improve.

Helen Khan weaves an allegorical narrative through societal traditions that sanction domestic abuse and inequality towards women, but the garden gives a welcomed response of unconditional love, respect and dignity. Sonu, the narrator, takes the reader on a journey through her neighbourhood, Baraka Colony, that explains the societal mindset where violence towards women is expected and accepted behaviour. Sonu sees her mother abused and as the terror in their home intensifies, escapes to a magical garden where the shrouds are lifted to reveal a world she has never known. It is here she meets Lamb who teaches her that women deserve respect and kindness. Never having seen real love before, she meets unconditional love. In contrast to the tragedy of her world, her repeated escapes into the garden are a triumphal chorus of hope, encouragement and strength. Now she has a story of hope and redemption to tell, and even in death she continues her journey throughout the earth sharing that women are worthy of love and respect. If you have ever felt disrespected or have been abused, a journey with Sonu to her garden will give you the same encouragement and strength that she received there, especially from Lamb.

"The voice of God is sounding in this world—the voice of God calling, seeking, beckoning to lost men and women!" — A. W. Tozer Our world is fallen - sick and sinful, says A. W. Tozer. But though God will ultimately be our Judge, He continues to call sinful people to repentance and salvation. In this series of sermon excerpts, Tozer elaborates on the voices God uses: the witness of the Holy Spirit, the blood of Jesus, human conscience, reason, accountability, judgement, and—of course—love. The voice of God calling 'Where are you?' still echoes from Eden and down through the ages. Do you hear Him?

The prophetess Miriam, the elder sister of Moses, represents one of the most remarkable examples of feminine strength in the Bible. Her feminine leadership changed the course of history, yet the sands of time have silenced her voice. It was Miriam who prophesied the birth of Moses. It was she who watched over him in the bulrushes, and she who suggested the baby's own mother be hired as his wet nurse. Miriam, Moses, and Aaron were appointed by God to lead the Hebrews out of Egypt, though it was she whom the entire people relied upon for the sustenance of water and faith. Miriam's feminine leadership needed no ratings. She knew her power. What she was, what she endured, are important as we consider mindfulness in our lives today. In Miriam's Secret: Revealing the Ancient Wisdom of Feminine Leadership, author, TEDx presenter, healing music composer, and voice mentor Eliana Gilad reveals the astounding truth: We are our own leaders. We can access our own Promised Lands within, no matter what our circumstances.
