 Now revised and updated to incorporate numerous new materials, this is the major source for researching American Christian activity in China, especially that of missions and missionaries. It provides a thorough introduction and guide to primary and secondary sources on Christian enterprises and individuals in China that are preserved in hundreds of libraries, archives, historical societies, headquarters of religious orders, and other repositories in the United States. It includes data from the beginnings of Christianity in China in the early eighth century through 1952, when American missionary activity in China virtually ceased. For this new edition, the institutional base has shifted from the Princeton Theological Seminary (Protestant) to the Ricci Institute for Chinese-Western Cultural Relations at the University of San Francisco (Jesuit), reflecting the ecumenical nature of this monumental undertaking.

The fictional Summer River flows through the remote southeast corner of Summer County in Northern California. In addition to an illegal commune assembled on a mining claim on the river, the region is home to an aging cattle rancher, an aspiring wine grape grower, a marijuana grower, and an elder of the New Life Assembly with a spirited teenaged daughter. Still suffering the pain and anger of a broken marriage, Karen Mitchell moves with her five-year-old daughter into a friend's cabin on the south bank of the river. "Rick Kantola is a wonderful writer. Great descriptive powers, pleasing line and paragraph rhythms, and a wonderful ear for dialogue." Todd Walton, author, Inside Moves and Ruby and Spear. "...a gifted writer with a strong moral angle, a capacity for creating memorable characters, and a deep and lovely sense of landscape." Tim Farrington, author, The California Book of the Dead

In a society overrun by commercial clutter, religion has become yet another product sold in the consumer marketplace, and faiths of all kinds must compete with a myriad of more entertaining and more convenient leisure activities. Brands of Faith argues that in order to compete effectively faiths have had to become brands - easily recognizable symbols and spokespeople with whom religious prospects can make immediate connections Mara Einstein shows how religious branding has expanded over the past twenty years to create a blended world of commerce and faith where the sacred becomes secular and the secular sacred. In a series of fascinating case studies of faith brands, she explores the significance of branded church courses, such as Alpha and The Purpose Driven Life, mega-churches, and the popularity of the televangelist Joel Olsteen and television presenter Oprah Winfrey, as well as the rise of Kaballah. She asks what the consequences of this religious marketing will be, and outlines the possible results of religious commercialism - good and bad. Repackaging religion - updating music, creating teen-targeted bibles - is justifiable and necessary. However, when the content becomes obscured, religion may lose its unique selling proposition - the very ability to raise us above the market.
